

Fireworks may frighten horses

The British
Horse
Society

Planning a display? Horses are flight animals and likely to become stressed by loud bangs and sudden lights in the sky.

To escape the perceived 'danger' they may run through or jump fences which could injure the horse or cause a road accident.

Please advise local horse owners and stables about your event so they can manage their horse appropriately.