

Simple steps you can take to help prevent the spread of equine disease at events

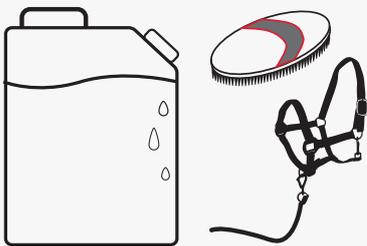

The British Horse Society

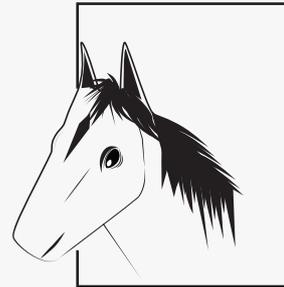

Don't take your horse to an event if they, or another horse on your yard is unwell

Vaccinate and keep them up to date

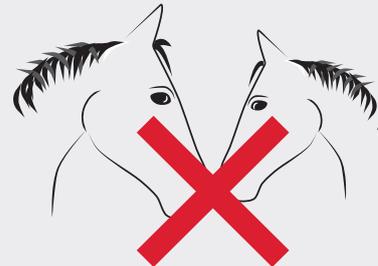

Take your own water supply, or clean buckets if using event taps and avoid sharing equipment

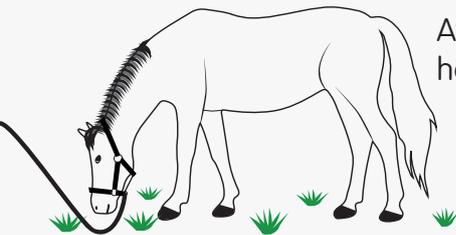

Ensure the stable and bedding is clean if your horse is being stabled at an event

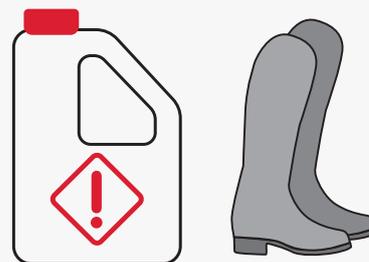

Wash hands after touching other horses

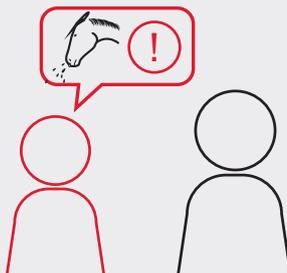

Prevent contact off your yard

Avoid grazing your horse at the venue

Clean and disinfect equipment and transport after events

Make the event organiser aware if your horse becomes unwell at an event or if illness is confirmed by the vet within the 14 days following an event

Monitor your horse closely, ideally for at least two weeks after the event, including daily temperature checking
